Case Act Of "International Outlaw"

[By the Associated Press]
Washington, June 20 — President Roosevelt described the sinking of the Robin Moor today as ruthless and the act of "an international outlaw" and declared that the United States did not propose to yield use of the high seas to Germany.

The President made his pronouncement on the sinking of the American vessel in a special message to Congress which permitted of stronger language than a formal diplomatic note.

Mr. Roosevelt stated without qualification that the vessel was sunk by a German submarine.

The Robin Moor went down in the South Atlantic on May 21 and all its passengers and crew subsequently reached safety.

Survivors said a German submarine torpedoed and shelled the ship.

(First word of the sinking came June 9, when the Brazilian ship Ozorio flashed word she had picked up a lifeboat containing 11 survivors. Then on June 16 a British vessel arrived at Capetown with the other persons who had been on the Robin Moor.)

(The first boatload of survivors picked up drifted in the mid-Atlantic 18 days while the others for 13 days.)

Mr. Roosevelt said the general purpose of the sinking "would appear to be to drive American commerce from the ocean wherever such commerce was considered a disadvantage to German designs."

Its specific purpose, he said, "would appear to be interruption of our trade with all friendly countries."

"We must," he added, "take it that notice has now been served upon us that no American ship or cargo on any of the seven seas can consider itself immune from acts of piracy. Notice is served on us, in

MAIL PICKUP
MISHAP BREAKS
ELECTRIC LINE

Equipment On Plane
Believed Damaged;
To Change Fields

A mishap which made impossible the air mail pickup late this morning at the Oak Ridge field dropped a 4,600-volt electric line across a battlefield avenue and loosened a big transformer on a light company pole at the edge of the airfield.

The metal hook dangling from a long line trailing from the bottom of the mail plane caught the high tension wire as the ship approached the field. The wire was broken and dropped to the roadway, while the transformer was loosened.

The pickup equipment on the plane apparently was damaged because several attempts to whisk the waiting sack of Gettysburg airmail, suspended between the two uprights on the Forney field, failed. The pilot dropped a sack of incoming mail and a note directing postal authorities here to notify All-American Aviation offices at Wilmington, Delaware, of the accident. The local airmail was sent out by train an hour later.

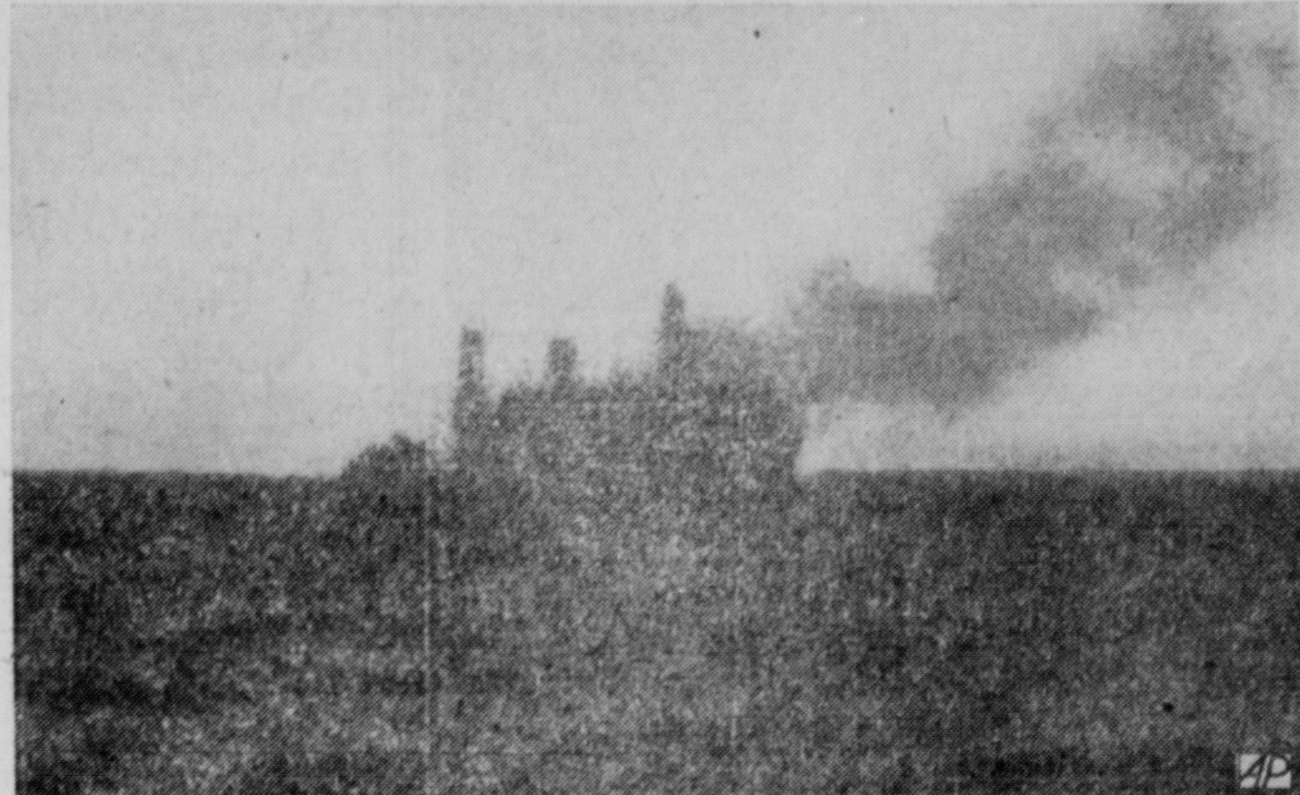

The mishap this morning was expected to hasten arrangements for a switch of the pickup equipment from the Oak Ridge field to the Doersom landing field, two miles west of here on the Lincoln Highway. Today was the date originally set for the change. All-American Association officials had noted the hazard of the high tension electric line along the approach to the present pickup point, although it had not caused trouble until today.

At the postoffice today it was stated this was the first mishap of its kind since the pickup service was instituted here, although a serious accident was averted narrowly recently when the hook and long line struck the ground and then bounded into the air and wrapped around one wing of the ship. It was necessary to land here to unwrap the line.

Metropolitan Edison workmen were busy repairing the damage today.

The American steamship Robin Moor was just being torpedoed in the south Atlantic May 21 as this picture was made by Virgil Sanderlin, a member of the crew, from a lifeboat 1,900 yards away. Sanderlin arrived in Washington (June 19) to report to State Department and Navy officials.

U.S. CONSULATES
IN GERMANY
READY TO CLOSE

Strain Of Relations
Increases As Nazis
Retaliate

[By the Associated Press]
Berlin, June 20 — The strain of deteriorating American-German relations increased today as United States consulates and American Express Company offices throughout Nazi-controlled Europe began making preparations to close their doors at the request of the German government.

The fact that Italy also ordered closing of U.S. consulates there was taken as an indication that the action was intended to be a demonstration of Axis solidarity.

Without awaiting an answer to her protest against the closing of German consulates in the United States, Germany struck back with a similar step here, charging the American representatives with espionage, propaganda and other activities hostile to the Reich.

American Express Also
All American citizens working in consulates and in the American Express Company offices were ordered to leave before July 15.

(The Italian government, which reserved decision with respect to American Express Company offices, also fixed July 15 as the final date for the closing of U.S. consulates. Consular employees were asked to leave Italy and Italian-controlled territory because of their "attitudes and activities.")

The entire Berlin press gave prominent front-page display to the official German news agency's announcement of the closing order without comment.

A Big Question Mark
The fate of American property, such as household goods stored with the American Express Company, was a question mark.

Another question was what would happen to the thousands of Jews who have on file applications for permits to enter the United States. Jews wondered whether the closing of the consulates would hamper their chances of obtaining visas. German authorities are on record as determined to rid the country of all Jews.

The World Today

[By the Associated Press]
The Finnish defense ministry today ordered reservists of all classes up to that of 1897 — members of which are 43 and 44 years old — to report for service immediately. Military punishment was ordered for those failing to obey.

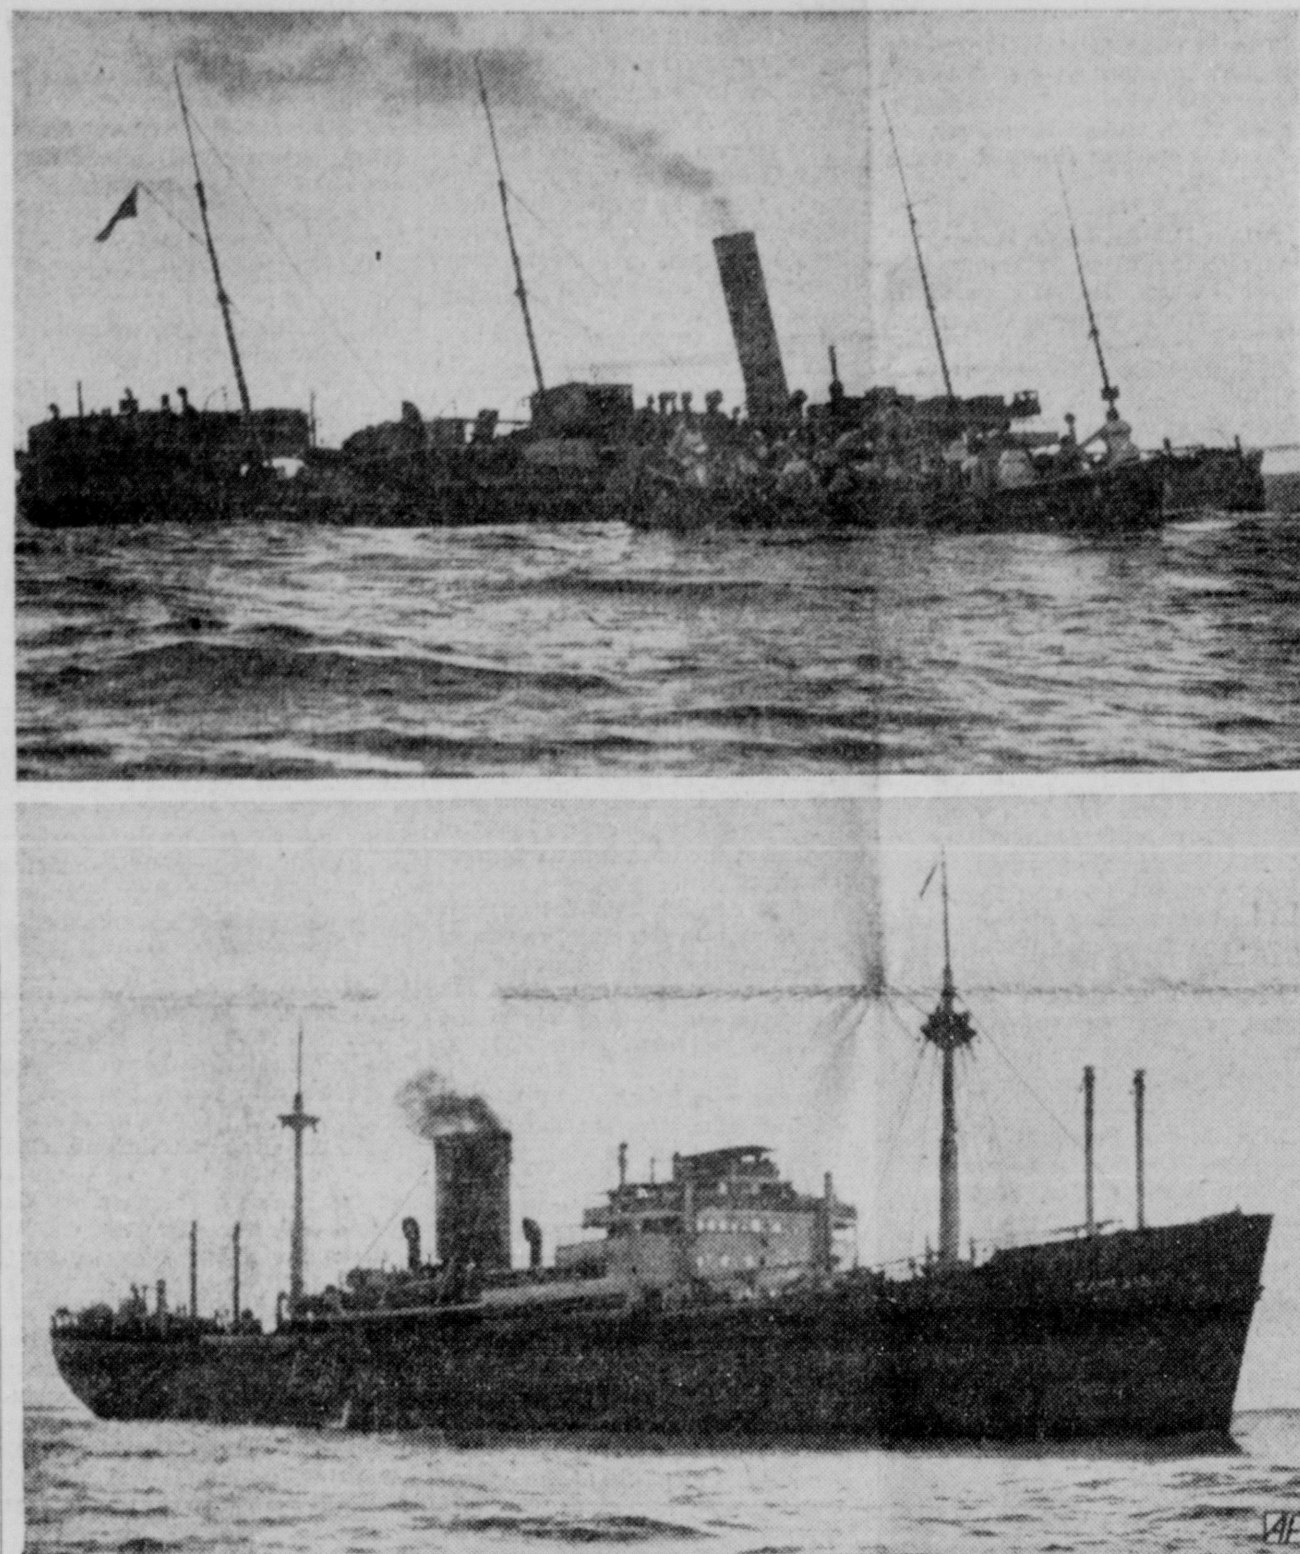

For the last two days calls for various groups of reservists have been issued as Finland, alarmed by rumors of an impending clash between Germany and Soviet Russia, prepared to defend herself.

Finnish leaders have expressed fears that their country could not escape involvement should conflict come between her two mighty neighbors.

Greyhound Seeks Bus
Service Rights To York

Harrisburg, June 20 (AP)—The Adams Transit Company asked the Public Utility Commission today to authorize abandonment of its service between Gettysburg and York, and the Greyhound lines simultaneously applied for the right to take up the rights.

Attorney J. Stuart Danner, representing the Adams Transit Company, said the service had proved unprofitable and the firm had lost $200 in the last year running two trips daily and one on Sunday.

The Greyhound Lines, through Attorney Charles H. Young, of New Castle and James Brinton, traffic engineer, said the company's Philadelphia to Pittsburgh buses, passing through the two cities, could take over the service, providing four trips daily instead of two.

Examiner Herbert Levy said that at the time the Greyhound Lines applied for the rights between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, it had conceded the Gettysburg-York service to the Adams Transit Company.

State Official Visits
Doersom Field On Thursday

"An excellent site capable of filling any possible aviation needs in this section," was the way John J. Quinn, acting director of the division of aeronautics of the State Department of Revenue, described Doersom field along the Lincoln Highway west of here after an inspection Thursday afternoon with members of the Gettysburg Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The aviation committee of the Junior Chamber today pressed for authorization of NYA, CCC or some other form of federal aid for improvements in the field which must be made before it can be licensed.

Runways Needed

Burgess C. A. Heiges accompanied the Jaycees and Mr. Quinn on the inspection trip on Thursday afternoon of the Doersom field 2.1 miles west of here.

Following the study of the site Mr. Quinn stated that if runways were laid on the field he would be in position immediately to license the location. He suggested that rolled sod runways several hundred yards wide and about 2,000 feet in length be laid running north and south, east and west, and diagonally across the other two runways. Only

GROWERS HEAR
TALK ON COUNTY
LABOR OUTLOOK

Adams County fruit growers, already faced with a labor shortage and with the first crisis expected to be reached in the cherry picking season within a week or more, heard Truman B. Thompson, manager of the Gettysburg office of the Pennsylvania State Employment Service explain the functions of his organization at the June meeting of the fruitmen's association on Thursday evening at the Biglerville auditorium.

He described the public labor pool the Employment Service is developing and pointed out the advantages to the community that could follow more complete use of the Employment Service by both employers and employees, enabling the service to match men and jobs faster and better than limited use will permit.

Extension Specialists Report
The growers heard reports from extension specialists from State College on disease and insect conditions and made tentative arrangements for field method spraying demonstrations to be conducted on July 3 at 9:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. The places have not been fixed.

J. O. Pepper, entomologist, reported on insect conditions and said the first peak of codling moth worms was reached between May 19 and 21. He advised that the next cover spray should be applied soon after July 4 and said that growers who are equipped to wash their fruit might find it advisable to apply an additional spray. Apple trees should be banded at once, he said. Dr. R. S. Kirby, pathologist, said apple scab seems to be under control but some frog-eye leaf spot is appearing. First brown rot among peaches appeared June 17 and is "getting a start in cherry orchards where it needs watching." He recommended a lime sulphur mixture for that purpose.

Discusses Marketing Act
Edmund W. Thomas, First National Bank president from Gettysburg, spoke to the growers about the importance of close cooperation in meeting common problems and President Harvey B. Raffensperger discussed the amendments to the marketing act regarding grapes, apples and potatoes in closed packages. The counties were invited to a Franklin County Growers' meeting this evening in the Chamber of Commerce building in Chambersburg.

Relief Boards To Drop
Employables Aged 20-40
Harrisburg, June 20 (AP)—Pennsylvania's county relief boards were ordered today to remove "all unattached, able-bodied employable individuals" between 20 and 40 years of age from the state relief rolls on July 16.

Secretary Howard L. Russell said the order would apply to approximately 6,000 persons and was adopted after "a full review of the present employment situation and the experience of county boards." A total of 256,522 persons now are receiving state relief.

Col. J. L. Barton, executive director of the Public Assistance board in Adams county, said today that "in substance the policy announced by the state has been in operation in the county for some time." He added that at the present time there are no persons on relief who come under the new state ruling.

Lentz Post Donates To
USO Fund; Total Is $418

Today's gifts total $73 and bring the total for the county to date up to $418. Gettysburg leads the list of communities with a total of $288. Biglerville is second with $30. U.S. Sub 4 Hours Overdue
After Diving Trials

Portsmouth, N. H., June 20—(AP)—The Navy reported today that one of its oldest submarines, the O-9, a small undersea boat recently brought back into commission, was four hours overdue on a test dive off the Isles of Shoals, not far from where the Squalus sank two years ago with the loss of 26 lives.

The rescue ship Falcon, which aided in finally bringing the Squalus to the surface, was reported at the scene.

Admiral John D. Wainwright said the craft was making a dive in a swept area in 370 feet of water.

The O-9 normally carries between two and four officers and around 30 men.

The submarines Grenadier, Trout, Triton, O-6, and O-10 also were rushed to the scene.

$6,500 SCHOOL
SHOP TO BE BUILT
AT EAST BERLIN

Structure Planned
For Use Under NYA
Project

Elmer M. Gruver, supervising principal of the East Berlin public schools, disclosed Thursday afternoon that the proposed opening of one of the 11 farm shops for Pennsylvania in East Berlin provides for the erection of a $6,500 farm shop building on the high school grounds there.

Blue prints for the structure are ready and Oliver Myers, an East Berlin contractor, has been named foreman of construction. Pouring of concrete footings for the one-story concrete block structure to be faced with red brick to correspond to the high school building is expected to start before July 1 and the building may be finished in a month.

To Be Placed Near Gym
The new structure, which will be located northwest of the present gymnasium, will measure approximately 47 x 32 feet. When it is completed, equipment which has been in use in the shop in the high school building will be moved into the new quarters. That change will release the present shop for use as a classroom. Some additional mechanical equipment is to be secured for the new mechanical workshop.

Although the new building will cost about $6,500 only a small portion of that will have to be paid by the East Berlin school district, the local sponsors for the project. The school district will provide heat by running lines from the present building and will do the electrical work also. The school district may have to spend less than $1,000.

First of Work in State
The work is being done as a NYA project. A small mobile crew of adult workmen will be sent to East Berlin, while the remainder of the labor will be supplied by out-of-school youth between the ages of 18 and 25 years who will work in shifts of 13. Most of the youths will come from the East Berlin section.

The new building will be completely fireproofed and the only wood used in it will be a floor covering for a section of the working space.

The East Berlin project is the first of its kind to be started in the state, although 10 others are listed for other counties. Facilities for instruction for an average of 35 boys will be provided.

ENCAMPMENT OF
71ST ARTILLERY
HERE ARRANGED

Unit To Arrive June
28; To Join Long-
street Program

A delegation of officers from Fort Story, Cape Henry, Virginia, were in Gettysburg Thursday evening and this morning making final arrangements for the encampment of the 71st Coast Artillery anti-aircraft regiment in Pitzer's Woods along West Confederate avenue from June 28 to July 2. On Thursday evening, the officers, headed by Maj. A. C. Spaulding, met with Mrs. Helen Dorch Longstreet, widow of the Confederate general, and Joseph Rosensteel, Gettysburg National Museum, director general of the Junior Corps of the National Longstreet Memorial Association, to outline the Longstreet parade on July 2 in which the 71st Coast Artillery will participate.

In addition to Major Spaulding, the delegation comprised Lt. L. B. Deville, Lt. F. J. Roddy, Lt. T. M. Midura, Catholic chaplain, and Lt. W. A. Cox, Jr.

The 71st, commanded by Colonel E. W. Timberlake, consists of 1,600 men, 75 officers, 250 vehicles, 50 pieces of anti-aircraft equipment, including three-inch guns, 37 millimeter Howitzers, 50 and 30 caliber machine guns, searchlights, sound detectors, and modern rolling kitchens. The vehicles range from quarter-ton "biltz buggies" to 12-ton primemovers.

Night Drills Scheduled
The two battalions of the 71st, commanded by Major Spaulding and Major Dimnick, respectively, will leave Fort Story in the morning of June 27, spend the night at Bowling Green, Virginia, and arrive at Gettysburg about noon of June 28. Upon arrival tactical positions will be occupied for three-inch anti-aircraft gun defense and an automatic weapons close-in defense of the town. Night drills will be scheduled, using powerful searchlights. The regiment expects to have assumed night attacks made on Gettysburg by planes which will be taken under fire by the guns after being illuminated by the searchlights.

Parents Invited
On Sunday, June 29, there will be a field mass, celebrated by Father (Lieutenant) Midura, and Protestant services at which the Rev. (Captain) Martin Potch will officiate. Invitations have been issued to the parents of the soldiers to attend a field dinner with the regiment on that day. Approximately 900 of the 1,600 men live within a radius of 150 miles of Gettysburg.

On July 1, the regiment will celebrate its first birthday anniversary and that evening a tour of inspection of the camp will be made by Mrs. Longstreet and Mary Pickford.

During a recent visit to Gettysburg Colonel Timberlake stated that he wished to have all residents of the vicinity visit the camp of the troops and that he especially wished to have the women inspect the cooking arrangements, the food that is served and how much these modern soldiers will eat when given the proper food. He was enthusiastic about his cooks, stating that he thought that they were the best in the Army. They cook on new, modern, gasoline stoves in fast moving trucks, preparing an entire meal while the trucks are moving on the road, thus adding to the mobility of this type of warfare.

To Parade July 2
The regiment will be accompanied by "Sergeant" Bosco, black Labrador retriever, mascot.

Following participation in the Longstreet parade on July 2 by the entire personnel and all equipment the regiment will depart for its base by night marches as a training maneuver.

AIRPORT PLANS PUSHED; SITE IS INSPECTED

State Official Visits Doersom Field On Thursday

Slight improvements of the ground would be necessary to lay out the runways suggested.

The proposed field would allow for possible expansion to 5,000 feet in any direction, he pointed out. Such length would be sufficient for any need, he stated, even Army needs, if the Army should ever decide to locate planes here.

A number of airports have been built in the state recently by NYA labor, he pointed out, with the town or township meeting the labor costs with machinery to do the job.

In order to secure the machinery and borough and township assistance, the Jaycee committee today sought to obtain permission from its board of directors to call a public meeting in the very near future for the council members, college authorities, general public and Cumberland township officials and residents, in order to lay the plans for the field before them and to seek their aid in obtaining sufficient machinery to fill the borough's part of a project if the town fathers approve of such a step.

That a definite need for airports is developing in the state was made clear Thursday with an announcement that during the past 18 months the number of pilots in the state has increased from 2,500 to 4,000.

Increase in Number of Pilots

At the same time the number of planes licensed by the state has increased from 500 to 1,400. The increase in pilots and planes has been stepped up several hundred per cent, it was stated, since the inception of the government training of civilian flyers. Growth of aviation this year is expected to be double that of any previous year. One light plane factory alone in Pennsylvania will produce 3,000 private planes this year, Mr. Quinn said.

Among the members of the Junior Chamber who inspected the field yesterday with Mr. Quinn and Burgess Heiges were Dr. and David Deitch, Glenn C. Bream and Walter Dunbar.

The temperature of the planet Saturn is 238 degrees below zero.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, June 20 —

Leftover bits of cauliflower: Billy Conn's been offered $25,000 to make the movie of Octavus Roy Cohen's fight story, "Kid Tinseltown".

Incidentally, the movies of the fight show Billy wasn't hit with a single right-hand punch through the 13 rounds so long as he kept his left hand high.

Louis dealt it off the arm only when the glamor boy forgot and dropped his port paw.

Louis' ring earnings to the penny are $1,987,663.96 in 54 fights in seven years — not counting the fun he's had knocking guys' ears off.

And in case you've forgotten, Conn turned down $200,000 just a year ago to tangle with Louis, for which he got $77,000 night before last.

Ben Jones figures on shipping

Whirlaway to Arlington Monday or Tuesday. . . . To get ready for the classic, naturally. . . . Larry MacPhail spent $22.50 to call up Tom Sheehan, the Minneapolis manager, to find out how his Brooklyn trip-let, the Cards' clouter from Columbus. . . . Chances are Conn'll get the call over Nova for Louis' September outing because of the gate Billy'll draw.

Pome dept. —

I wonder what's become of all those guys with so much on the ball Who had a barrel full of fun Picking Joe to win in one.

And what of all those merry lads Who scribbled wisely on their pads That Billy was a dainty scallop And would be kayoed with one wallop?

Today's guest star — Kenneth Jones, Peoria Journal-Transcript:

"How times change. Metropolitan papers are running color stories of the umpires now." (Remember the good old days when the ump's did the running, pals?)

"Mr. Old Timer" comes up with a card suggesting a saliva test if Washington doesn't win the Poughkeepsie Regatta Wednesday. . . . Two writing gents who took Conn's loss more to heart than any of 'em were our Sid Feder and the New York Journal's Hype Igoe. . . . They were first to pick Billy to beat the Bomber, 'way back last winter. . . . Until someone else puts in a bid, Spud Chandler, the Yanks' Georgia Peach, will do as the year's hard-luck pitcher. . . . He's turned in as good a job as just about anybody on the staff, but is still looking for his first win.

As a reminder for those who said

Mel Ott was all through a year ago, the "oldest white child born in the Polo Grounds" has hit 17 homers so far this season, and already is only two away from his 1940 total. . . . Ancil Hoffman and Mike Jacobs have cut up $35,000 as the first take on the Buddy Baer-Joe Louis fight pictures. . . . And, brothers, that ain't tin. . . .

'Nother Pome —

By six other American League managers it would be a pretty bargain if J. J. Dykes would stop a-hoggin' The secret in his hallowed noggin: Of how to hand those Yanks a-floggin'.

RIGNEY NOT FIT

Chicago, June 20 (AP)—John Dungan Rigney, 26-year-old star pitcher for the Chicago White Sox, was rejected today for service in Uncle Sam's Selective Service Army on the ground that a perforation of the right ear drum made him unfit physically for service.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

FREE MEN

THIS is not a political talk about
the freedom of the individual or about his free way of life. Rather
I want it to be one about the free
mind—the one that is without crude convention, or held to rules and the laws that institutions direct.

The free mind is the greatest possession in this world—the mind that
is ever ready to go — in thought—
to any corner of the globe, to cast
off any conventional tie, and drink
freely from the fount of natural
knowledge that springs from under one's feet, no matter where one
may be!

Imagine a big banker, or leader
in world affairs, just dropping
everything, engaging himself in old clothes, and off for a run of a week or so to the forest—just to listen to the notes of song from nature's songsters. Or, just to wander
about hills and along streams, stopping here and there to talk to a
water fowl, or a butter-cup, or to merely sit and try to interpret some formation of shore or rock. Such a man would know more freedom than ever a crying orator could tell.

Most people are actually bound—mere slaves—in thought. They don't want to let go of any favorite ones.
They want to hang to superstitions,
to bed-ridden ideas, and to go on as father, or grandfather—or as Moses
did!

This is today, however—one of the most glorious periods of the world's history—and one of the most hazardous and confusing. Even so,
no one can shackle the human mind
and make it a slave. No one can deprive that mind of its thoughts,
no matter how enslaved that body
may be.

Free men are those who think
free—who have no horizons to their thoughts or who place no limit to their world of thought. We cling too much to dated things. The greatest Teacher of all times said:
"Heaven and earth shall pass away,
but my words shall not pass away."
Meaning, I take it, that truth is immortal.

The free mind—in action—is something to take note of, and to emulate at every opportunity.
Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "On Planting."

4 Bishops Tour Battlefield on Way
to Chicago: A touch of the ecclesiastical beauty of the Chicago Eucharistic Congress to be held next week was revealed for Gettysburg-
ians on Wednesday when four bishops, a monsignor and a chaplain,
all from the little European republic of Czech-Slovakia, visited
the battlefield here.

The distinguished guests went to the rectory of St. Francis Xavier Catholic church where they were met and welcomed by the Rev.
Father Mark E. Stock.

A trip over the battlefield was followed by luncheon at the Blue Parrot Tea Room.

Through an interpreter, they expressed themselves as well pleased with Gettysburg.

Orrtanna Home Changes Owners:
George M. Weiler, of Johnstown,
who has purchased the Keady store

SUMMER'S EDGE

Here we are at summer's edge,
Flowers white along the hedge,
Roses budding and the bees
Draining blossoms to the lees, Fledglings with their mothers by Making first attempts to fly,
And the garden all day long
Just a theatre for song.

Here we are at summer's rim,
Beauty brightening spaces dim;
Many a little garden spot
Gay with blue forget-me-not,
And, what's always good to see,
Bronze and purple fleur-de-lis;
Bright blue flag of gardens all,
Whether large or whether small.

Here we are at summer's gate
Where uncounted glories wait,
Hills and lakes and running
streams;
Ready for the man with dreams;
And in many a near-by field
God's unfading daisy yield.
Here we are! Say not in vain
Summer comes to us again.

The Words They Used

Citizen of Sidon (told this story of how the war affected this famed biblical city)—"French officers told us that Sidon would be an open city
and that if they withdrew from positions near the frontier they would pass through our city to take up positions in front of Beirut and that we had nothing to fear. But they took positions just south of Sidon and for three days British shells were flying about. Then they took a new position just north of the city and shells from both sides
were flying over our heads."

Major General Adna R. Chaffee (commander of the United States
tank forces, after visiting the Tennessee war games in which the second armored division is going through its first trials of the new tanks)—"We didn't have a complete
armored division to bring here, however. * * * We are shy on medium 28-ton tanks, and in a smaller degree on light 12½-ton and 12-ton
tanks. Our artillery is in fair
shape; we are without self-propelled artillery, but we will have it later."

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard
(in a speech before the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association at Syracuse, N. Y.)—"The U. S. is going to help Great Britain with all the means at its disposal. * * * The people have decided * * * we are going ahead regardless."

Mayor George H. Lysle (when the McKeesport mayor was told of a telegram from the American Civil Liberties Union offering legal aid to the municipal strikers)—"That bunch comes to the rescue of the Communists every time. My fighting blood is up now and we're going to see this thing through to the finish."

Senator Cavalcante (words about
him when the State Senate adopted
the committee report expunging
the senator's charges from the record)—"Your committee deplores the fact that any member of the general assembly, under the guise of doubtful constitutional immunity,
should so far transgress the ordinary rules of parliamentary propriety and the concepts of proper ethics."

MAY BREAK THE DEADLOCK OVER
BUDGET SOON

Conferences Will At Least Make An Attempt

[By the Associated Press]
Harrisburg, June 20—Republican leaders of the House and Senate decided today on week-end conferences in another effort to find a solution to the budget deadlock which has held the 1941 Legislature in session to the point where it threatens to set a new modern record for longevity.

A spokesman for the group said:
"We'd like to determine just what
the Republicans of the Legislature
must have in the final analysis and
then it's possible we can sit down
with the Democrats on Monday and see if a compromise can be worked out."

House and Senate at Odds
The Democratic House and the Republican Senate and administration are at odds over estimated
revenues for the current biennium.
The Democrats say Governor James
should reckon on a $426,000,000
general fund, an increase of $13,- 000,000 over the executive's estimate.

As a result, a conference committee has been unable to agree on the amount of tax anticipation notes to be floated.

The politically divided legislature
also has failed to agree on the personal property and bank share taxes.
The Democrats cut the levy from four to three mills and the GOP
faction restored it to its original form.

Legislature's 26th Week

The budget tangle has brought
the 1941 regular session into its 26th
week starting Monday. Senate leaders said they hoped for final adjournment by July 3 or 4. Legislative reference bureau authorities
said the longest previous regular session since the constitution of 1874 was adopted ended June 29.

Road Building Held Up?
Governor James announced yesterday the tangle over tax notes has reduced the Highway Department
to a balance of only $500,000 for road improvements, as one result of the legislative delay and its effect on state departments.

Defense Labor Difficulties

[By the Associated Press]
Yesterday the CIO-UMW and the northern soft coal producers signed an agreement. A new conference
today will try once again to bring
southern operators in accord.

Labor differences persisted in San Francisco shipyards, the Puget Sound lumber camps and on some Great Lakes ships.

CIO National Maritime Union was
on strike against the Nicholson Transit Company, Great Lakes operators, claiming the company had refused to bargain collectively.

Instead of the bill the House
Naval Committee considered, on the 30-day "cooling off" period, a simpler
bill is proposed which would authorize President Roosevelt to issue an order, upon approval of NDMB, prohibiting the "assisting" of a strike.

McKeesport CIO striking municipal workers accepted the advice of
older CIO union leaders last night,
starting today to clean up a vast
accumulation of garbage and rubbish. They accepted the same increased wages as offered them before they went on strike. Mayor Lysle won his point in refusing to deal with the union's committee as a union, but will deal with the same
committee as employees of the city.

Piper Aircraft Corporation arranged today to pay off its employees
who check in their tools, as Federal and State mediators planned to resume conferences with company and APL representatives at the strike-bound plant. State troopers are still guarding the plant.

Home Economics Clubs

Meetings of five girls' 4-H Clubs
will be held in county communities
next week on a schedule announced
today by Miss Mildred L. Adams, county home economics extension
representative. All of the meetings
will be held at the homes of members.

The list of meetings follows:
Monday at 7:30 p. m., Rock Chapel
Clothing Club with Virgine Gochen-
our.

Tuesday at 1:30 p. m., Brushtown
Room Improvement Club, Dorothy Hill.

Wednesday at 9:30 a. m., York
Springs foods and health with Joan Starry, and at 1:30 p. m., New Chester Clothing Club with Marian Starry, and Thursday morning at 9:30 a. m., Fairfield Foods and Health Club with Arlene Rohrbach.

Miss Adams will be in her office
at the Court House Monday, Tuesday, Friday and Saturday mornings
and Friday afternoon.

A white Pomeranian dog, sole companion of the late Mrs. Maud
Ford, of Waynesboro and Hagers-
town, was buried in Leitersburg,
Maryland, this week, in compliance with the wish of Mrs. Ford as expressed in her will. Mrs. Ford directed that the dog be buried in the yard of an aunt.

Carlisle Legionnaires have selected three sites, all within a radial of three miles of the city, for
the erection of air-raid alarm stations. The stations will be located on farms where station operators
will have access to telephones.

A fifteen minute exhibition by a mechanized army unit from Indian-
town Gap under command of Colonel A. H. Stackpole will be a feature of the second annual York

ticipating in the exhibition include

F of the 104th mechanized cavalry.

Burgess Frank T. Adams, of Carlisle, has announced his candidacy
for re-election at the September Democratic primary.

Wilbert F. Sakemiller, of York,
was sent to the York county jail
until he can furnish bond that he will pay $6 a week for the support of two children. Sakemiller bluntly told Walter Anderson that he will not pay any money to anyone for
the support of his children if any portion of the money gets into his wife's hands. He said that he had served six months for the same offense and was prepared to serve additional time rather than pay money
that might reach his wife.

Hagerstown has oversubscribed its quota of $5,700 for the Salvation Army, Major Amel Shultz, of the Salvation Army Corps announced at a dinner at the close of the drive
this week. An anonymous contribution practically assured the success of the campaign for the objective amount.

Frederick county has inaugurated
its war against the Japanese beetles.
600 pounds of spore dust will be spread over 200 farms in threatened areas and beetle traps will be placed
at various locations in the county.
Adams county has not had a Japanese beetle quarantine for several years.

Gypsies are said to have duped
Mrs. Catherine Zook, of Hagerstown
out of her life savings of $550. The gypsies, believed by Mrs. Zook, because of her defective eyesight, to have been colored are said to have worked the old "bag" trick. They instructed her to place the money in a paper bag to remove the "spell"
of her defective vision. The money
and the gypsies disappeared. Mrs.
Zook has been reimbursed to the extent of $300 by Hagerstown
friends.

Service men will be given special
training in refrigeration and re-
frigerating machinery at the York
Ice Machinery Corporation, the Navy department announced this week.
Service men will start reporting to

Other classes will open August 18
and September 29th.

A non-partisan committee comprising practically the entire Cumberland County bar members has been organized for the purpose of furthering the campaign of Judge Fred S. Reese for re-election next fall. The committee has been left open to admit non-legal members.
Judge Reese was advised of the
move at a luncheon held in Carlisle
this week.

L. V. Bomgardner, former member of the Pennsylvania motor police stationed in Gettysburg, led a raiding party in York county this week
which seized 3,000 gallons of alleged illegal liquor and mash and arrested
three men, one of whom is said to have served three months for a liquor law offense.

Frederick's council has placed a ban on the sale and firing of fire-
crackers within the city limits and
announced that it would again hold
a public fire works demonstration
the night of July 4th.

The Business and Professional
Women's Club of Frederick received its charter Wednesday evening. The presentation was made by Miss Hattie E. Brooks, of Cambridge,
President of the Maryland State Federation of Business and Professional women's clubs.

York is establishing a defense nur-

national emergency. Registered nurses are offering their services
and will attend a series of nine lectures on nursing as a "refresher

now living in York county and it is hoped that majority will enroll for the service.

Two thousand one hundred and
eight garments were made by women volunteers in York during the month of May, the American Red Cross chapter reported. The garments represented more than 6,300
hours of work, all by women who volunteered their services to the Red Cross. The garments were for war relief.

SURTAXES WILL BE DUE THOUGH
NO NORMAL TAX

Paradoxical Phase Of
Federal Bill As Reported

[By the Associated Press]
Washington, June 20 — Here is a comparison of the amount of normal income tax with the surtax
which married persons having no
dependents would have to pay under the revenue program tentatively
approved by the House ways and
means committee:

(Both figures include the 10 per cent defense surtax which Congress imposed last year.)

Income	Normal Tax	Surtax
$2,500	$11.00	$27.50
5,000	110.00	198.00
10,000	308.00	858.00
15,000	510.40	2,035.00
25,000	950.40	5,555.00
100,000	4,250.40	49,600.00

Uncounted thousands of persons
who won't have to pay the normal
federal tax on their 1941 incomes
would have to dig down anyhow,
and pay surtaxes under the new revenue program just tentatively
approved by the House ways and
means committee, informed legislators said today.

This paradoxical situation results
from the fact that the 10 per cent
earned income credit allowed in the computation of normal income taxes
cannot, under the committee's plan,
be deducted in figuring surtaxes.

How It Works Out

Thus, a married couple with two dependents and $3,000 of net income would not pay any normal income tax but would be subject to a surtax of $11.

The committee gave tentative approval yesterday to the major provisions of the new tax bill. The two big points were the imposition
of a graduated system of individual income surtaxes which would more than double the 1940 payments of all individuals, and a drastically increased corporations' excess profits
levy.

The individual surtaxes were counted on to produce approximately $1,055,700,000 of the $3,500,- 000,000 in new revenue sought under the tentative program.

Surtaxes to Raise a Billion

The surtaxes would start at 5 per cent on the first dollar of taxable income — that is, after all deductions and personal exemptions except the earned income credit —
and rise gradually to the present
maximum of 75 per cent on incomes
of $50,000,000 and over. The present defense surtax of 10 per cent
was left unchanged and would apply to both normal and surtaxes.

This tax schedule, representing the stiffest imposts on personal income in the nation's history, was considerably less drastic, however,
than that originally proposed by the Treasury which would have started at 11 per cent.

U.S. MOVES TO GROW SUPPLY OF CASTOR SEEDS

Ship Shortage May Cause Scarcity And Stop Imports

An emergency castor bean seed production program, designed ultimately to furnish this country with a supply of adapted seed stocks in the event defense developments should make it expedient to increase domestic castor oil production in 1942, has been launched by the Department of Agriculture.

The program will be limited to 11 counties in the black-land area north and south of Dallas, Texas. It will be carried out in cooperation with the Texas Upland & Light Company, which has most of the available adapted seed stock as well as technical information acquired in its experiments with castor beans as a possible new crop in the agricultural territory the company serves. The company is donating the seed and the services of some of its technical personnel.

Under the seed program, it is contemplated that approximately 1,700 acres of castor beans will be planted in the Texas counties of Bell, Collin, Dallas, Ellis, Fannin, Grayson, Hill, Lamar, Navarro, McLennan, and Van Zandt. To encourage the planting of castor beans, farmers cooperating in the Agricultural Adjustment Administration program in the 11 Texas counties will be offered 3½ cents a pound for cleaned seed and will be exempted from deductions from their 1941 Agricultural Conservation Program payments for excess soil-depleting acreage equal to five acres or 5 per cent of the cropland, whichever is the greater, where the excess is due to the planting of castor beans.

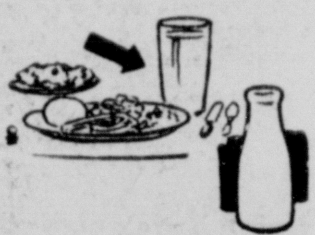

With normal production, 1,700 acres should produce approximately 1,500,000 pounds of beans. This is enough seed to plant from 250,000 to 300,000 acres in the event it becomes necessary to do so. An acreage of 250,000 acres of castor beans would produce from 55,000,000 to 80,000,000 pounds of oil depending on seasonal conditions.

Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard emphasized that the castor bean seed program is "strictly a defense measure made advisable by the possibility of the lack of shipping to bring in our normal requirements of tung oil from China and castor beans from Brazil and India."

Milk Called Basis Of The Family Diet

"Milk contributes more to good nutrition than does any other single food," says the United States Bureau of Home Economics. Because milk has no equal as a source of proteins, minerals, and vitamins, it is the soundest foundation on which to build wholesome meals for the family.

Everyone admits that milk is indispensable for infants, but many people do not realize that milk is needed throughout life for adequate nourishment and optimum health. During childhood and adolescence, milk provides the food essentials necessary for growth, and at least a quart of milk daily should be used, either as a beverage or in cooked foods. Adults, too, need milk for the maintenance of health, and should have at least a pint daily. National Dairy Council nutritionists point out.

Dairy Councils Are Leading Milk For Defense Campaign

Under the leadership of the National Dairy Council and organizations representing millions of farmers, milk and dairy products distributors and processors, retail food, drug and variety stores throughout the country, a June Dairy Month campaign to increase consumption of milk and dairy products is under way.

Milton Hult, president of the National Dairy Council in announcing the nation-wide plans for the drive said, "June Dairy Month this year is one of the most important campaigns ever carried on by the combined dairy industry as the onrushing national defense program makes it doubly important to increase consumption of milk, butter, cheese, ice cream and the other dairy products."

"The production of milk on farms is also making new high records. "The situation is entirely different than it was in 1917 when food was scarce. Today there is ample food and the newer knowledge of nutrition has shown our people how to use food to insure a stronger nation."

Mr. Hult also pointed out that three quarters of the farms of America contributed to the annual production of the nation's milk supply, a supply that produces the largest single source of farm cash income totaling in 1940, $1,526,702,000.

National organizations representing all branches of the dairy industry, as well as other groups, are sponsoring June Dairy Month, including: National Cooperative Milk Producers' Federation, National Dairy Council, American Dairy Association, American Butter Institute, Dairy Industries Supply Association, Ice Cream Merchandising Institute, Independent Food Distributors Council, Institute of Distributors, Inc., International Ass'n

NEW McCORMICK-DEERING No. 9 MOWER

It takes less power to pull the New McCormick-Deering No. 9 mower. That's because of the new ball-bearing transmission with Zerol-Bevel gears. Besides, the gears are located back of the axle and run in a bath of oil.

All gears are steel and machined to precision accuracy. That means a very smooth, quiet-running mower, good for a lifetime of outstanding performance. Once you see the New No. 9, you'll agree with us it's the best of a long line of great McCormick-Deering Mowers. We'll be glad to show you the one we have on display.

THE SACRED DAGGER

by Rita Mohler Hanson

YESTERDAY: At last the Nagas, guardians of Shy-a Nago, the hidden Asiatic city, have come for Anne Willard to take her to their capital, where her parents are being held prisoner. But the Nagas have taken all the personnel of the Willard's archaeological expedition as well, including Blaze Sherwood, the latest and least wanted member. Anne is trying to do something to help Blaze who is being treated harshly—the guard at Sherwood's tent seems afraid of her.

Chapter 29
MIDNIGHT MEETING
Anne laughed and took a quick step towards him and he retreated a step with a shamefaced giggle. He knew she was teasing him, yet nevertheless he intended to take no chances.

With a quick move Mackey unbolted and pushed open the door. The young fellow was on him with a bound. They rolled on the earth and rose, facing each other. Sherwood had come to the door.

"Cut it out, Pete," he called sharply. A guard from the big iron studied gate rushed across. Both natives seized Mackey.

Anne warned Sherwood as if he read her intention to interfere. "We just want to talk to you a moment and give you the robe," she explained.

Sherwood spoke to his personal guard. He had discovered that the boy knew the smattering of Turk. The two natives conferred between themselves for a moment then said something to Sherwood. He spoke to Mackey.

"They say you can take the robe from Anne and give it to me. Then you must return to your tent and stay there," Anne handed Mackey the robe and asked Sherwood:

"Did they let you eat your noon lunch?"

"The guard and I ate it together. I'm not treated too badly."

He was pushed back and the door drawn shut by his guard, while the other led Mackey to the yurt. Philip and Doddap returned and the gate was barred.

Anne looked out and spied the lama squatting beside the tent. She went and stood beside him. He rose, and she was able to talk to Blaze," she asked.

"I fed him supper and washed his face."

"That was good." She smiled at the picture he conjured up. "Do you know what the Nagas intend to do with him?"

"They take him to the high priest. Then, they say, the sacred dagger will indicate vengeance as it has on every one who sees Shy-a Nago without the right."

"This dagger I carry?" Anne exclaimed, putting her hand on the leather case.

"It has killed all the others." "I'd like to destroy it," she said slowly.

"It is your protection. You would destroy yourself and the rest of us." "If only we could help Blaze escape!"

"You wish to talk to him?" "Could it be done?"

"I'll give the guard a deep sleep." "With a club?" she asked humorously.

"With my magic," she stared at him a moment.

"All right, Doddap, if you can do it."

"Rest just inside the door until I call you."

Instead of joining the other girls at the back of the tent Anne did as the lama told her, wrapping herself in a handsome argali skin.

Philip roused and looked at her. "That's a drafty spot," he said.

He closed his eyes and slept.

Explanation
Sometime past midnight Anne was awakened by the lama gently pulling her hair. She crept out quietly and they stole across the dark yard. He opened the door carefully and closed it behind her. She stood quiet to get her bearings. In a niche in the wall sat a saucer of fat with a rag wick burning in it. Otherwise the hut was bare except for the pile of felts upon which Sherwood lay, covered by the fur robe she had sent him, his duffle bag for a pillow.

His eyes were bright upon her and a smile quirked his mouth.

"You seem to be all right," she said, walking towards him. He moved over, kicking the robe down and she saw that his hands were bound to the belt at his waist.

"Sit beside me," he said. After a moment's hesitation she complied, examining the cords on his wrists.

"Do they hurt?"

"Only my free spirit. Will you take them off?"

"I guess we'd better let them be. It might make your guard suspicious if he discovered they'd been tampered with. I came to see if we could plan an escape for you."

"Who wants to escape?"

"Don't be silly," she said, "this may mean death."

"I know it, Anne," he agreed seriously. "I have known all along that the Nagas are not people to monkey with."

"Why did you fly over their territory?"

"I had intended just to scout the border searching for those fool Russians. I saw a ruined village. Then I saw a high bare basin and a band of men riding across it. I mistook them for the Russians and landed in their line of travel. When the bullets began coming I left. But I had seen the hidden city. . . . O Anne!"

A look of awe and delight came into his face. "It is wonderful! It is unbelievable! Moisture glistened in his eyes and he closed the lids. She watched him with quivering lips.

"And now you will never see it again unless you escape."

"How can I escape? Doddap may work on one guard but you can't expect him to befuddle the whole tribe."

"You've got to escape or they'll kill you." She bent his shoulder with her fist. "Listen to what I say."

He rubbed his rough chin against her temple. "Precious, if that's the road my body goes nobody can do anything about it."

She sat up, hunting for another handkerchief in her coat pocket. "You can do something about it. You're ingenious. You're clever as a wizard when you want to be."

"There may be a chance tomorrow," he conceded. "I hear we're climbing a strip of mountain that can be taken only afoot."

"Then you'll promise to try to escape?"

"If you'll be kind to me now. Bend over and kiss me, Anne."

She eyed him dispairingly. "Blaze, we're on opposite sides in this war—you're not my friend and I'm not yours."

"No? But we love each other. Kiss me, precious."

She sighed and bent to him. Presently she said, "I like it better when your face is shaved."

"If this imprisonment keeps on much longer I'll have a long, silken beard. You'll like that."

She laughed, her eyelashes still tangled with tears. "The way you talk."

"Talk is all I can do."

Her arm tightened about him and she pressed her free hand against the swift, hard beating of his heart. His lips touched her throat, and he whispered, "Until my hands."

The door opened and she sprang to her feet. Blaze laughed. "Go now," said the lama in his birdlike voice.

"I wish it had been Mackey," grinned Sherwood.

Anne spoke hastily to the lama. "He promises he'll try to escape tomorrow."

"Go now," repeated Doddap as if those were the only words of English he knew. Anne stared at him perplexedly a moment, gave Blaze a confused, "Good night," and left.

They started out next morning on horseback, accompanied by half a dozen picked native men under the same leader as the day before. A deep narrow gorge led them up the face of the mountain. Sometimes the path wound between boulders beside the brawling torrent, sometimes up precipitous slopes so far above the river that only a gentle murmur could be heard from it.

They dismounted and crossed incredibly high wooden bridges that sagged and swayed at every step. The women were almost in hysterics by the time a halt was called for lunch. The trail ahead would be too difficult and dangerous for horses.

"Are we going to ride mountain goats from here on?" asked Beth as she slid to the ground from her panting horse and lay there.

"Now we walk," said Anne, dropping down beside her.

"Not me unless I'm pushed and pulled."

"That's probably the way it shall be," remarked Mackey, joining them.

They had stopped in an open cove high up on the side of the gorge where a traverse cut into the canyon, its mouth filled with tumbled cliffs and boulders large as houses. The natives built a fire, heated water for tea to which they added butter and parched barley in the Tibetan style. Even Diana downed her share. Sherwood who had traveled with them, unbound today, sat near her.

She moved close and began a confidential conversation with him which Anne caught herself watching with all the intensity of a jealous wife. It seemed to contain a good deal of banter from Sherwood at first then surprise and interest that intensified to something like a love combat—aggressive pleading on his part, sudden archness on hers.

"He should be planning his escape now," thought Anne and looked across at Doddap who sat between two big rocks beating his small drum and chanting a prayer. She rose to go over to the little spring that trickled out of the mountain side. Mackey went with her.

"They turn the horses loose here," he said, "and let them find their way home."

"Just the opportunity for Blaze," she declared, as they washed their food bowls at the spring and took a drink of water. "Maybe the lama will."

"Say," interrupted Mackey "that little heathen's gone deaf or something on me today. He can't seem to understand a word of English."

"What?" cried Anne. "Last night he treated me the same way."

It was then the shot came, reverberating sharply through the gorge. A native, bending over the fire, fell face down in the ashes and lay still. Another shot, from up the side glen, they saw, and another native fell.

"Everybody down," shouted Sherwood. "This is war." And he threw himself behind a rock, taking Diana with him.

Presbyterians delay use of help until vice goes

Synod of State Urges U.S. To "Clean Up" Camps

[By the Associated Press]

Grove City, Pa., June 20—The Presbyterian Synod of Pennsylvania today forwarded to all Presbyterian Churches in its area a recommendation to withhold support of the United Service Organization's financial drive until federal authorities take "definite steps to clean up liquor and vice conditions" in the immediate vicinity of Army camps.

The service organization, headed by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York, recently launched its drive for a $10,000,000 fund to supply recreational facilities for the growing Army, Navy and Marine corps.

The 200 delegates attending the Synod's 59th annual conference here, Thursday adopted a resolution authorizing officers to send out the recommendation. They also protested against the sale of beer in Army canteens to men in the military service.

An invitation by Beaver College of Jenkintown, Pa., to meet there next June, was accepted.

The sessions end today with appointment of committees by Moderator Peter K. Emmons, of Scranton.

Judge W. C. Sheely, of Gettysburg, is attending the Synod sessions as a lay representative of the Presbytery of Carlisle. He is an elder in the Gettysburg Presbyterian Church.

U.S. WON'T YIELD USE OF SEAS TO NAZIS, SAYS FDR

effect, that the German Reich proposes to us to intimidate the United States that we would be dissuaded from carrying out our chosen policy of helping Britain to survive.

"In brief, we must take the sinking of the Robin-Moor as a warning to the United States not to resist the Nazi movement of world conquest. It is a warning that the United States may use the high seas of the world only with Nazi consent."

"We are not yielding on this we would inevitably submit to world domination at the hands of the present leaders of the German reich."

Mr. Roosevelt proposed to congress no line of action or retaliation. Apparently he chose the vehicle of a special message so he could couch his protest in the most forceful language at his command.

Nor was there any disclosure what steps the government might be contemplating to protect American merchant vessels on the high seas.

It was regarded as doubtful, in order not to tip Germany off on what to expect, that there would be any disclosure on this point—whether in the field of arming cargo ships or of bringing the navy into play to protect them.

Mr. Roosevelt told Congress the Robin Moor was sunk without provision for the safety of the passengers and crew and despite the fact that the ship's American nationality was known to the submarine commander and was clearly indicated by her flag and markings.

The sinking, the President said, flagrantly violated the right of United States vessels freely to navigate the seas subject only to a belligerent right accepted under the international law.

"This belligerent right, as is known to the German government," he asserted, "does not include the right deliberately to sink a merchant vessel, leaving the passengers and crew to the mercies of the elements."

"On the contrary the belligerent is required to place the passengers and crew in places of safety."

"This chance rescue," the chief executive declared, "does not lessen the brutality of casting the boats adrift in mid-ocean."

"The total disregard shown for the most elementary principles of international law and of humanity brands the sinking of the Robin Moor as the act of an international outlaw."

"The government of the United States holds Germany responsible for the outrageous and indefensible sinking of the Robin Moor. Full reparation for the losses and damages suffered by American nationals will be expected from the German government."

same day was broken up by a counter-attack, the communique said.

The Gondar area, northwest of Addis Ababa just above Lake Tana, is held by one of the strongest Italian forces left in East Africa. British reinforcements sent into the area two days ago were scattered by Fascist planes, the communique said.

In Berlin, authorized quarters said that Germany's action in padlocking United States consulates was "not a reprisal" and that the German government had proof on dozens of cases where, information gathered by American consular officials was directly submitted to the British secret service in whose behalf they acted.

No longer, a Berlin spokesman said, would Germany "continue our magnanimous attitude toward American machinations" in the Reich.
